Harry Dahme is a senior partner of the Environmental Law Group at Gowlings' Toronto office. He has practised exclusively in the area of environmental law since 1984 and has a solid reputation as one of the foremost environmental lawyers in Canada.

Harry is certified by the Law Society as a Specialist in Environmental Law.

He has particular expertise in advising clients in respect of contaminated sites and Brownfields. He has spoken extensively on these topics and has provided a "Cross-Country Review" of changes in provincial contaminated sites legislation to the Brownfields Conference almost since its inception.
