

Lana Fulton Keppel

Executive Vice President
Chartis Insurance
Environmental Division

Lana has been in Environmental Insurance for 17 years. She joined Chartis Insurance in 1994 as an underwriter in the New York Region. She held several underwriting and managerial positions in the New York Region before moving to Chartis' home office as a PLL Product Line Manager in 2000. In November of 2004 Lana was promoted to Vice President of the PLL lines of business, spearheading many changes in these products' guidelines, rating models, training programs and file documentation. Capitalizing on the positive impacts that she had on the PLL book of business, Lana accepted a position as the Vice President of National Accounts in October 2006 in charge of the underwriting field offices for the division. She is currently the Executive Vice President of Corporate Accounts where her managerial and underwriting skills are utilized to build a broader knowledge base within the underwriting regions and to ensure that the Corporate Accounts business continues to grow while producing profitable results in both casualty and pollution products.

Prior to joining Chartis Insurance, Lana's work experience included positions with ECS Underwriting, Inc. (now XL) and Marsh, Inc.

Lana has a Bachelor of Civil Engineering from Villanova University.
