

Bruce Mohun

Bruce Mohun is a science journalist, and a TV director and host. He won the 2003 Science Council of British Columbia's Eve Savory award for Science Communication and the 2004 Canadian Federation of Biological Sciences Gordin Kaplan Award for Science Communication. He has produced, directed, hosted and written hundreds of hours of TV. His shows have aired on Knowledge Network, Discovery Channel, TVOntario, Access, CBC and SCN. His half-hour production on the world's fastest bicycle won a Leo Award for Best Science and Technology documentary in 2003. His documentary on Dyslexia won two 2008 Freddie Awards. And his global warming documentary series was screened at the New York Film Festival and the Image and Science Film Festival in Paris.
